

Alma Simba
Postgraduate Fellow of History
University of Dar es Salaam, Tanzania

Alma Simba is a Postgraduate Fellow of History at The University of Dar es Salaam, Tanzania. Her research interests include ethnohistory, material and immaterial cultures, history of ideas, natural resources, and gender. Alma is passionate about issues related to justice and liberation from gender to race as well as the ways in which academia can address contemporary issues. During her fellowship, Alma will attempt to deconstruct the sensitive materials as scientific objects through sound techniques and writing. She believes that the collection of sensitive provenances must be done through indigenous relativity, ancestral honoring and spiritual practice.
